Jac Weller Kills Self With Shotgun Blast In Township Home

John A.C. (Jac) Weller, military historian and author, engineer and businessman, died Thursday, August 18, of a self-inflicted shotgun wound at his home on Herrontown Road. He was 81 and had been in declining health with cardiomyopathy for some time.

Mr. Weller's wife, Cornelia Murray Weller, to whom he had been married for 55 years and with whom he collaborated on many of his endeavors, died January 14, 1992. Although deeply grieved at her passing, he had seemed to have recovered from the loss, according to John Powell, a longtime trusted employee, and it was his health problems that were of more immediate concern, Mr. Powell said.

Acute physical distress brought him to the emergency room of Princeton Medical Center the Saturday before he died. For a man who was an outdoorsman all his life and had been an athlete and an early choice for the College Football Hall of Fame, declining health was especially depressing, Mr. Powell suggested.

On August 18, Mr. Weller was alone in his bedroom after lunch, having gone there to take a nap. Mr. Powell discovered that the door to the room was bolted when he tried to open the door for the dog, who wanted to go into Mr. Weller's room, but he says it was not unusual for Mr. Weller to lock the door. At one point he heard a dull thud, but did not take much notice.

It was only when he and the cook were unable to get an answer from Mr. Weller when they knocked on the door around 4:30 to ask him what he would like for dinner that they became concerned. Mr. Powell brought a ladder to the window and climbing it saw that Mr. Weller was not in his

END OF THE ROAD: Jay Robinson, of Princeton, enjoyed an ice cream cone in front of the Halo Pub on Hulfish Street last Thursday afternoon. With school on the horizon and summer melting away, local kids, parents, and teachers are preparing for the start of the school year. School Board, Municipal Representatives In Conciliatory Mood, Try Working Together

One would have barely guessed that the School Board and the municipal governments had clashed in recent weeks over hazardous route busing and the fate of the Valley Road building.

Conciliation was in the air at last Tuesday night's School Board meeting, as representatives of the School Board, Township Committee, and Borough Council advocated — in the words of Committeewoman Michelle Tuck — "working together to reach mutually beneficial conclusions."

The Valley Road question centers on what the School Board would do with the building should the Township decide to build a new municipal building. A major area of friction between the School Board and the Township has been the Township's level of maintenance of its half of the building since it moved in about 14 years ago.

School Board members, however, said not a word about Valley Road at the meeting. Instead, Board President David Robbins announced that representatives of the School Board and Township Committee woulo meet privately to discuss the issue, probably on September 14.

Mr. Robbins said the Township had asked the School Board to meet on the disposition of the Valley Road building, should the municipality decide to leave.

Former School Board Member Roz Frisch said she was disturbed at the statements Mr. Robbins had made at Township Committee on behalf of the School Board.

Multicultural Mix Enriches & Challenges Princeton Schools

The ethnic diversity of Princeton's public school students lends a uniqueness to the town, and is viewed with a measure of pride by many Princeton residents. In addition to African-American and Asian students, there are a growing number of Latino children, as well as representatives of dozens of other cultures.

At Riverside School last year, at least 40 foreign languages were spoken by the children. One was so obscure that English-as-a-Second-Language teacher Donna Clovis had to reach out on the Internet for help in working with the child.

Ms. Clovis needed some direction in how to help an 8-year-old Inca Indian child who spoke Quechua, an Indian language of Guatemala. The child was having difficulty learning English, and the school was perplexed at her lack of progress.

After hitting a dead end, Ms. Clovis posted an inquiry on the Internet about how to use the grammar and syntax of Quechua for second-language acquisition.

Help arrived quickly from several sources, including a linguist whose aunt spoke Quechua. Soon the child was learning English at a rapid pace.

But the multicultural mix that brings diversity into Princeton's classrooms also presents a multitude of challenges to teachers and other staff members. This issue was addressed in July in a week-long workshop in the Valley Road building that was attended by 14 teachers and five support staff members. The workshop was funded by the State desegregation grant.

These staff members, representing every school in the District, will now in turn conduct multicultural workshops for teachers and other staff members in their schools.

"The goal was to make teachers understand what multicultural education is, and to develop a greater sensitivity to all the different cultures in the Princeton schools," said Kathy Patten, Princeton Regional coordinator of curriculum and staff development.

Donna Clovis conducted the workshop for three days. The other two days were devoted to "A World of Difference," a staff inservice

Whither the Statue?

What's next? Will 60 Minutes send Mike Wallace to Princeton to find out the real story behind the controversy over the Einstein statue? Or maybe Time magazine will decide to come out with a cover story. Just as long as Hard Copy stays out.

Media interest in why some people want a statue of Albert Einstein placed in town, and others don't, appears on a definite upswing.

The New York Times sent a reporter to do an article for its Metro section. A few days ago, Robert Landau was called by Canadian Public Broadcasting for his thoughts on the statue. These are scheduled to be part of a program, "As It Happens," to be broadcast on National Public Radio.

Mr. Landau said that Melvin Benarde — the prime mover in trying to find a place in the Borough for the statue — had received a call from CNN. They wanted to know when the issue would again come bed.

He called 911. The Township Police responded, and gaining access to the room through the window, found Mr. Weller's body on the floor. There was no note.

Jac Weller lived in Princeton for more than 60 years. He was born in Lee County, Ga., where he attended Catholic elementary school and also Georgia Military Academy. His father lost his farm in the Depression, and the family moved to Florida where he attended Jacksonville High School. He is a member of the school's Hall of Fame for his football prowess but is also remembered for having entered a state meet with four track teammates and winning it.

He came to Princeton in 1931 to attend the Hun School. He had fond memories of Johnny Hun, who founded the school and was helpful to him personally, and of Thomas Watson, a classmate who went on to found International Business Machines. From Hun, Mr. Weller went to Princeton, where he earned a bachelor of science in engineering.

A guard on the Princeton football team in its glory years, 1933-35, he was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1957 and named first string All Eastern Guard for the All Time team in 1969.

In 1933, his Princeton team limited its opposition to only eight points as it piled up nine straight victories. The next year, the record was 7-1-0, marred only by a 7-0 loss to Yale. The 1935 team again recorded nine straight triumphs, giving up only 32 points.

"Greatest Lineman"

His coach, Hall of Famer Herbert O. "Fritz" Crisler, credited him with "a remarkable combination of size, quickness, and smartness...particularly when it came to getting through, feinting, and generally dominating the man in front of him." His line coach, Elton E. "Tad" Wieman, who had coached several All-American linemen, called him without reservation, "the greatest lineman I ever coached."

At Princeton, Mr. Weller also participated in track and held the record for the discus throw for many years. He boxed and was known for his phenomenal strength.

After graduating in 1936, he worked for the John R. Roebling & Sons Company in Trenton for two years. He was an assistant football coach at Princeton from 1938 to 1941, and during part of that time worked as an engineer and production foreman with American Type Founders Corporation of Elizabeth under a British purchasing commission.

During World War II, he was a general foreman with General Motors Corporation in Trenton, engaged in the manufacture of TBM aircraft, a folding wing Navy fighter plane designed to be launched from an aircraft carrier. He devised more than 1,000 "jigs," devices to guide tools or to hold machine work in place, and his wartime monthly production schedules were always met.

After the war he worked in the construction business and then became president of G.R. Murray, Inc., the insurance firm in Princeton founded by his father-in-law, George R. (Joe) Murray, and treasurer of Cornelia Weller Real Estate. Since 1971, he operated one of the few remaining working farms in Princeton Township, building, with his wife, many of the farm structures and producing steers, pigs, chickens and eggs for the local market.

As a military historian and firearms expert, Mr. Weller was the author of nine books, including three which have recently been re-printed, on the Duke of Wellington in India, in the Peninsula and at Waterloo. His technique was marked by careful investigation of the battlefield and recreation of a battle from within the limited perspectives of its participants.

Encyclopedic Writings

He also wrote Weapons and Tactics: Hastings to Berlin, and was the co-author of Firearms Investigation, Identification and Evidence. His more than 250 articles ranged from three major articles in the Encyclopedia Britannica, 15th edition, on small arms to articles on the American Civil War and regular contributions to The American Rifleman on hunting and outdoor skills, including surviving in sub-zero temperatures.

Mr. Weller made assessments twice for the American military on the front lines in Vietnam and travelled seven times to Israel, writing reports and articles for professional journals and lecturing at Sandhurst and Fort Benning on his return. He was an honorary curator of the U.S. Military Academy Museum at West Point and the British Army School of Infantry Museum at Warminster, and he was a member of the Rowland Club in London, specialists in military history.

He was also a member of the Campfire Club, a conservation and outdoorsmanship organization in New York State, and held records in club-sponsored standing canoe races and the Rocky Mountain sheep target shoot.

Mr. Weller is survived by a sister, Blanch Ray Collmann of Knoxville, Tenn., and a half-sister, Burma Weller, of Atlanta, Ga.

A memorial service for Mr. Weller and his wife will be held in the Princeton University Chapel Saturday, November 19, at 10:30 a.m. Memorial contributions may be made to The Hun School of Princeton or CREED, an organization founded to support religious freedom in the former Soviet Union. Contributions to the latter may be sent to the Rev. Ernest Gordon, 787 Princeton-Kingston Road, Princeton 08540.

Einstein Statue

before Borough Council.

It was Council that decided not to vote (with the exception of Roger Martindell, who voted yes) on whether to contribute public land and maintenance to an Einstein statue.

The prospect of having CNN sail into a Borough Council meeting with reporters, cameras, and miles of wires can only bring smiles to anyone who spends time at such meetings.

At most meetings, Council members outnumber the audience. The business of government has a tendency to drone on a bit, and the mood might occasionally be decribed as somnolent.

But the presence of CNN could make quite a difference. It might be likened, perhaps, to having a community theater production of You Can't Take It With You filmed by a major Hollywood studio.

To quote Wolcott Gibbs' parody of Time magazine, "Where this will end, knows God."

Neighbors Focus on Real Estate Values and Safety Issues In 11th Meeting on Proposed Hospital Parking Garage

People for the Preservation of Residential Princeton (PPRP) were out in full force at last week's Zoning Board hearings. Many members of this neighborhood organization spoke out in opposition to Princeton Medical Center's proposed parking garage expansion.

"The Medical Center garage saga continues," noted Zoning Board chairman, Harry Cooke. It was pointed out that last week's was the 11th meeting that has been held on the subject.

PPRP members, many of whom live in close proximity to the proposed addition, were strongly opposed to the structure. Their complaints covered a wide range, but three categories in particular were emphasized: the garage's effect on real estate values, safety issues, and health care system changes.

Berit Marshall of 170 Jefferson Road, a Princeton resident since 1956, and a real estate broker since 1975, pointed out that the houses near the existing garage "do not demand the same prices as they do in comparable areas.

"An example is 38 Carnahan Place. It sold last November for $164,000. It is a colonial with three bedrooms and a full bath and a half. A three-bedroom colonial at 131 Mountain Avenue sold recently for $289,000.

TOPICS Of the Town

"The difference in pricing, 75 percent, is, t believe, largely due to the fact that Carnahan is located close to the hospital and the parking garage."

A Looming Presence

Mrs. Marshall also noted that the garage will destroy old trees on Henry Street, and according to the plans, "will occupy practically all the rear yards of the houses on Harris. Just imagine a parking garage looming over your own house. You don't have to be a real estate broker to know that you would have trouble selling your house.

"The homeowners are not before this board to ask for zoning variances or any other favors," she continued. "It is the hospital asking for variances. The issues for the homeowners are only the preservation and safekeeping of the quality of life in an old, well-established, and thriving residential community.

"In my opinion as a realtor, the proposed garage would erode the real estate value of the houses surrounding the site, and continue the erosion in real estate values in a wider area."

Christopher Tarr, attorney for the Medical Center, while acknowledging Mrs. Marshall's expertise in real estate matters, questioned whether her opinions were influenced by the fact that she was a member of PPRP and an area resident. Mrs. Marshall denied that her personal views affected her opinion as a professional real estate broker.

Real estate values were also discussed by neighbor Jim Floyd of 64 Harris Road. Formerly Mayor of Princeton Township, Mr. Floyd emphasized his "dogged determination" to convince the Board to reject the parking garage.

He reported receiving a letter from the Tax Assessor's office, stating that the value of his house had been reduced, due to depreciation. He challenged anyone "to visit my home and find evidence of physical depreciation." The cause was the existing parking garage, he said.

Irreparable Harm

"A parking garage of any size will only do irreparable harm to the neighborhood. Perhaps this is the plan of the Medical Center: the elimination of the neighborhood. Please reject this application, and help us save our neighborhood."

Mr. Floyd also brought up the increased problem of safety, especially for children in the area, saying that the addition to the garage in the proposed location would exacerbate the safety situation.

Beth Healey of 210 Moore Street agreed, pointing out that "Children in the neighborhood will pass the garage on their way to school. It threatens the safety of the children, as well as the community. When traffic empties out from the garage onto Henry Street, it is dangerous for the children. The whole situation on Henry Street is an accident waiting to happen."

Health Care Changing

Upcoming changes in the health care system were introduced by Dan Preston of 209 Moore Street, who identified himself as an economic journalist. 'We are in the midst of a major turning point in health care," he said. "Large centralized, industrialized medical centers are becoming less useful. Decentralization is the future. There is a sharp downward trend in hospital occupancy, bed occupancy is less, there are fewer visitors, and less demand for parking.

"The Medical Center's projections are suspect and unrealistic," he continued. "To approve a parking garage now would be folly. The Board is under no obligation to approve any parking garage."

The focus should be on healthcare, not on parking, he added. He reminded listeners of the physician's Hippocratic Oath. "First," he recalled, it says, " 'Do no harm.' This garage is an invasive, unnecessary procedure."

In response to questioning by the Board, particularly in regard to the Planning Board's requirement that the hospital provide 1000 parking places when it received approval for construction of the hospital's B wing in 1990, Mr. Preston replied that "the figure is simply out of date, and this is not the time to go forward with a huge parking garage, when the future of the health care system is in doubt. Five years from now, we may know better what is needed."

Tax Revenue Decline

The question of tax revenues was discussed by Tom Marshall of 170 Jefferson Road. He contended that the proposed garage would result in a loss of tax revenues to Princeton Township. "There are two reasons why we can expect a significant reduction in revenues. The first has been alluded to before — the depreciation of property values. At least one neighbor has had his assessment reduced, and we can expect many more. This affects everyone in the Township, because the tax burden will shift to other areas of the Township."

"The second adverse effect is evident if we consider that the major motivation for the Medical Center to build the garage is to provide parking for doctors who are renting offices from the hospital, and the patients who visit them. This is a business, and the hospital is a tax-exempt operation. We are subsidizing this.

"What would the Township gain if the doctors moved? We know the answer. The Princeton Medical Group did that to the great benefit of all. I hope a tax expert will review the tax benefits the Township has enjoyed as a result of the Princeton Medical Group's move to new facilities on North Harrison Street, and predict what further benefits would result if we stop subsidizing the hospital's present business activities."

How to Count Cars?

As the lengthy meeting continued, differences over interpretation of parking space usage emerged between the Medical Center's traffic consultant, Timothy Tracy, and a PPRP leader, Carl Bosch of 138 Jefferson Road. Mr. Tarr had asked Mr. Tracy to rebut Mr. Bosch's testimony at an earlier meeting regarding a discrepancy over figures in a traffic study (cars entering and exiting) and demand study (cars parked).

Mr. Bosch challenged Mr. Tracy's figures, repeatedly asking him whether he had first-hand knowledge of the parking demand.

Mr. Tracy replied that it was customary to rely on documented data for some of the information when preparing an analysis. This did not convince Mr. Bosch, and after an extensive exchange between the two, Board member Hanan M. Isaacs finally urged them "simply to agree to disagree."

Earlier in the evening, PPRP member, Virginia Kerr of 124 Jefferson Road raised the question of the neighbors' access to official transcripts. Tape recordings are available, but written transcripts, which have been provided by the Medical Center to the Board, have not been given to the neighbors.

"If the Board is treating transcripts provided by the Medical Center as the official transcripts, why aren't they available to the neighbors?" asked Ms. Kerr.

Board attorney Ivan M. Bash replied that the tape recordings are the official record, and they are available to the public.

Mr. Tarr responded by saying that "The Medical Center is paying for the transcript. It is very expensive. The other side has been asked to share the cost, and then they would have access to the document. This is standard procedure."

Later, Mr. Bosch noted that "The neighbors are concerned that we haven't had access to the official written minutes or transcripts of the 11 meetings that have occurred during this lengthy process over the past several months on this subject."

And this is certainly not the last meeting. Another is slated for September 21, at which time neighbors who have not had a chance to speak will be able to do so.

Mr. Tarr will present additional rebuttal witnesses, and reports by Township engineer Robert Kiser, Planning Consultant Richard Collier, and Zoning Officer Peter Kneski are expected.

Coming to Princeton? Leave Your Car at Home

Princeton proved inhospitable to a number of visitors last week. A man from Amherst, Mass., in town on business, had his 1991 Honda stolen from Palmer Square East last Saturday afternoon.

The car was taken from a parking space on the Square sometime between 12:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. It was valued at $9,500.

A visitor from Jerusalem, Israel, returned to the 1994 Ford that he left in the University Store parking lot on University Place on Saturday to find that his suitcase had been stolen from the trunk.

Police said that the theft occurred between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. There was no sign of forced entry. The suitcase, and the personal effects it contained, were valued at $1,450.

An act of criminal mischief had two victims last Tuesday evening, said police. At 9 p.m., police responded to a call at the Princeton University Press building at 41 Williams Street.

An unknown perpetrator threw a full can of paint through a window on the Charlton Street side of the building. The can did not open on impact, but police noticed paint spilled on the side of the building and on the ground nearby.

Following a trail of white drippings, police arrived at a 1991 Oldsmobile parked on Charlton Street, which had been doused with paint from a second can.

Police currently have no suspects.

most of its windows smashed during that time period the same fate befell a 1988 Honda, which was parked near Erdman Hall on the grounds of the Princeton Theological Seminary.

An employee of a Spring Street store reported that a pair of 12-year-old girls shoplifted a ring and a mushroom-shaped incense burner from the store on Sunday at 1 p.m.

The stolen items were valued at $17. The thieves were not apprehended.

An apartment on University Place was burgled last Tuesday evening between 3:30 p.m. and 5 p.m. Police said that the burglar entered the apartment through a window accessible by the fire escape. The window was open at the time of the burglary.

Taken were a Panasonic VCR, a JVC CD player, a gym bag, and some loose change. The total value of the lost items was estimated at $825.

Encore...Pescador

One of the local figures most familiar to Princeton's police force is currently being treated to a 90-day stay at the Mercer County Workhouse, said Captain Peter J. Hanley of the Borough Police on Tuesday.

Arturo Pescador, of no known address, was picked up for trespassing three times this week. On the morning of August 23, he was removed from the grounds of the Terrace Club on Prospect Avenue.

On Sunday at 7:15 a.m., the University's Department of Public Safety called police to remove him from the Old Grad College. When he was found in the same spot at 1:30 p.m. on the same day, police arrested him and held him in custody for lack of $250 bail.

On Monday, Judge Russell W. Annich Jr., found Mr. Pescador guilty of trespassing and sentenced him to the County Workhouse.

Two bicycles were reported stolen on campus this week, both between August 15 and 24. Police reported the theft of a Trek mountain bike valued at $325, which had been locked to a sign post. The second bicycle, a Schwinn valued at $200, was also stolen. The Schwinn had been locked to itself.

A Trek mountain bike valued at $420 was reported stolen from a Spring Street residence. The theft occurred between August 22 and 24; the bike was unlocked and unattended during that time.

In Borough Court this week, Mertyn Marshall, of 10 Maple Terrace, was fined $250 for harassment.

Aaron P. Thayer, of 26 Chestnut Street, and Timothy Brandt, of 10 Juniper Row, were both fined $650 and had their drivers' licenses revoked for six months. The charge against them was being a minor in possession of alcoholic beverages.

Township Police Make Two Arrests for Drugs

In two separate incidents, Township police placed men under arrest for possession of controlled dangerous substances and other related charges.

Officer Joanne Malta found Martin Kinney, 22, of no known address, walking on the driveway of the Mountain Lakes Preserve at 12:45 last Wednesday morning.

Because he was on private property, Officer Malta stopped Mr. Kinney for questioning. She discovered that Mr. Kinney was carrying a knife, a substance that police presume is marijuana, and rolling papers. Mr. Kinney also appeared to be under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

He was arrested and charged with possession of a weapon, possession of marijuana in an amount under 50 grams, possession of drug paraphernalia, and hindering prosecution. The final charge was added when Mr. Kinney refused to give his name after having been arrested.

Bail for Mr. Kinney was set at $5,000.

A second drug-related arrest was made at 4:40 a.m. on Saturday morning. Sgt. Robert Buchanan placed 38-year-old Harry R. Kennedy, of Philadelphia, under arrest when he was discovered sitting in his car in a parking area along Route 27 under the influence of cocaine.

Flying Carpets Trouble Princeton Rug Merchant

Police reported the theft of an oriental rug from the E. Bahadurian Carpet Store on State Road last Wednesday evening. At approximately 6:15, police said, a passerby noticed a man running east on Princeton Avenue with a rug over his shoulder.

The thief, according to the witness, had curly, shoulder-length brown hair, and wore blue jeans and a white checkered shirt. He stuffed the rug into a "Toyota-type" car with Maryland plates and sped away.

Police reported a burglary and theft which occurred at a Bayard Lane liquor store between 2:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. last Thursday.

The perpetrator forced open a back window and made off with $50 in cash and seven bottles of liquor with a combined value of $214.

A Schwinn 10-speed bicycle valued at $100 was stolen from the back yard of a Grover Avenue residence between 4 p.m. on August 19 and 8 a.m. on August 24. The bicycle was not locked.

Police were informed this week that a Trek mountain bike, valued at $175, was stolen from the porch of a Mulberry Row home between 9 a.m. on July 5 and 11 p.m. on July 15. The bike had been locked.

Several Arrests Made In Borough This Week

A sharp-eyed Borough police officer driving east on Nassau Street last Friday was able to arrest a man for possession of stolen license plates. Patrolman Wohlschlegel noticed that the inspection sticker in the window of a vehicle traveling in the opposite direction was not of the same shade of blue that the state currently issues.

The officer turned to follow the car and, after running a check on the license plates, discovered that they had been reported stolen in South Brunswick earlier this month.

Placed under arrest by Officer Wohlschlegel was Kinshuk Datta, a 27-year-old man residing at 29 Wiggins Street.

Mr. Datta was charged with possession of stolen license plates, driving with a revoked license, driving an uninsured vehicle, driving an unregistered vehicle, driving a vehicle with fictitious plates, and driving a vehicle with a fictitious inspection sticker.

The fake sticker, which attracted the officer's attention, turned out to be homemade, police said.

Police responded to a telephone call on Saturday evening at 10 p.m. informing them that a man was lying on the sidewalk in front of 67 Pine Street. When officers arrived, they found Jeffrey Tkacs, 36, of 160 Spruce Street, lying on the ground, apparently very intoxicated. Lying next to him, said police, was a cigar box containing marijuana.

Mr. Tkacs was charged with possession of marijuana, in an amount under 50 grams. He was placed in protective custody until he became sober, and was then released on his own recognizance.

Police were called to the Canton Grill restaurant on Hulfish Street last Tuesday evening just in time to stop a drunk driver. Police arrived at the scene at 7:30 p.m., just as Stephen Higgins, of Marin, Calif., was getting into his car to drive away.

Mr. Higgins was charged with driving under the influence and refusing to take a blood alcohol test. He was also charged with disorderly conduct for slamming a door and kicking over furniture in the restaurant.

He was later released on $250 bail pending a court appearance.

Two juvenile males, a 17-year-old Township resident and a 16-year-old Kendall Park resident, were arrested for possession of marijuana last Tuesday.

An officer of the Princeton University Department of Public Safety spotted the two youths smoking what appeared to be a marijuana cigarette near the Woodrow Wilson School fountain at approximately 9:45 p.m.

Borough police arrested the pair and charged them with juvenile delinquency. They were released into the custody of their parents.

An 18-year-old Hopewell woman was arrested for shoplifting last week in a Hulfish Street store. A store clerk noticed that a picture frame was missing from the store display shortly before 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday. She then spotted the frame protruding from the shopping bag of a customer.

She retrieved the frame and detained the customer until police arrived. Police arrested Amy Truglio, 18, of 64 Featherbed Lane in Hopewell. She was later released on her own recognizance.

Library Plans Tours Of Existing Building

The Princeton Public Library has scheduled eight tours of the existing building for the public with briefings on its condition during the month of September.

The tours are designed to inform residents about the needs of the library and the expansion options being considered by Township Committee and Borough Council. A public hearing before the two governing bodies has tentatively been set for Thursday, September 29.

Two options are under consideration for upgrading the library. One is an $11.9 million expansion of the current 26,660-foot building on Witherspoon Street to 57,606 square feet. The other is construction of a $12.5 million 53,766-square-foot facility at the corner of Terhune Road and North Harrison Street.

Arts Education Group Plans Fall Activities

Partnership for Arts Education, a recently formed group of parents, students and community members whose mission is to support the arts in the public schools, is working to increase awareness of the importance of arts education.

The Partnership plans to publicize school activities to parents, other schools and the community at large. Beginning this fall, each of the four elementary schools, John Witherspoon, and Princeton High School will be represented by a volunteer whose job it will be to "get the good word out" about arts education activities going on inside their school.

The group plans to participate in School Board discussion on the arts by questioning Board candidates, and by providing Board members with up-to-date information on the role of the arts in education. A member of Partnership will attend each meeting of the Board.

Also planned for the fall are a series of public forums at which experts in the field will challenge Princeton as a community to do the best for its children. A committee to plan and implement these programs is currently being formed.

For further information call Marcia Wood, 924-1751, or Ronnie Lowenstein, 924-7149.

PHS Ranked Number 2

Princeton High School came in second in the State in New Jersey Monthly magazine's rating of the best public high schools. The best public high school in the State, according to the magazine, is Mountain Lakes High School. The results appear in the September issue.

The magazine surveyed all 311 public high schools in the state. The data, from the 1992-93 school year, included test scores, number of teachers with post-graduate degrees, and number of graduates attending four-year colleges.

Third place went to Millburn High School.

Fall Classes Resume For Senior Citizens

"Flexercise with Jocelyn" resumes on Monday, September 12, at 10:45 at the Suzanne Patterson Center for all interested senior citizens. Led by Jocelyn Helm, certified dance therapist, the chair exercises are designed especially for people with arthritis and other disabilities such as cardiac problems, emphysema and rheumatism, but all seniors are invited to participate. Classes are free.

"What's New in the World?" — a geography class sponsored by the Princeton Senior Resource Center and taught by George Ingenbrandt, retired professor at Mercer County Community College — will begin on Tuesday, September 13, from 1 to 3 and continue on Tuesdays for 15 consecutive weeks. The fee is $25.

The first half of the semester, Prof. Ingenbrandt will continue world geography — not the dull memorization of school days, but the new global focus: the names and locations of new countries, changes in the old, their leaders, development of international trade, and some of their unusual customs. The last half of the semester will be devoted to various schools of art such as the French Impressionists, Hudson River artists, Oriental art and African art. The class will include videos, slides, map reading, and travelogues but no tests, homework or outside reading.

Line dancing will begin Wednesday, September 7, from 10:45 to 11:30 a.m. at the Suzanne Patterson Center. The music is catchy and the dances are easy, the company is great and the benefits are many. Line dancing is a no-impact aerobic activity which improves coordination and memory and partners aren't needed. The class is led by Judith Goetzmann, certified aerobic instructor and personal trainer. Classes are free and all senior citizens are welcome.

The Senior Resource and Suzanne Patterson Centers, in conjunction with Artworks, will offer a 12-week mixed media art class beginning Thursday, September 22, 1 to 3 p.m. at the Suzanne Patterson Center. Drawing, water color, and oil painting will be covered by Irene Asta, who has had extensive experience working with senior citizens. The 12-week session will culminate with a show and reception at Artworks, which is located in the same building as the Suzanne Patterson Center.

Class size is limited to 15 and the fee is $20. Call 924-7108 to register for any of these classes.

Bats at Dusk Program Offered by Watershed

Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association, Titus Mill Road in Hopewell Township, and The Washington Crossing Audubon Society will co-sponsor a Family and Adult Program, "Bats at Dusk," on Thursday, September 8 at 6:30 p.m.

Participants will watch the spectacular acrodynamics as bats feed on dozens of insects. In addition, a bat detector will be used to listen to the ultrasonic feeding calls. Throughout the program, participants will learn about bats and their way of life.

Participants will meet at the Watershed Main Office Building, a popular roost site. Although the program is free, pre-registration is required. For more information or to register, call 737-7592.

Fall Program Series Offered at Familyborn

Familyborn, the Mildred Morgan Center for Birth and Women's Health, is offering several classes and free consultations during the month of September.

Classes include free introductory childhirth seminars with certified nurse-midwives and a tour of the facility, childbirth preparation classes, newborn care and CPR, sibling preparation programs, grandparent orientations, hreastfeeding seminars, and new mothers' support groups.

In addition, free private preconceptional health screenings are offered at the center. Call Familyborn at 683-5100 for class schedules.

Hold Those Recyclables

The traditional every-other-Sunday-night Borough ritual of bundling and tying and moving the yellow can out to the curb should be postponed this week.

The Borough's Monday recycling day — September 5 — is also Labor Day, so there will be no pickup. Instead, National Waste is scheduled to pick up Borough recyclables on the following Sunday, September 11.

There is no change in the Township recycling day of Tuesday, September 6.

Building Connections At the Shopping Center

The Princeton Shopping Center will hold a special event called Building Connections on Saturday, September 10.

The Delaware-Raritan Girl Scout Council will hold a cookie castle competition between several Princeton-based architects. The architects have been working on their creative castle plans for weeks and will strive to obtain the title of "Most Creative Cookie Architect" of the year, entitling them to a reward of many cases of cookies.

The event is planned as a community day in which children can enjoy pony rides, a petting zoo, Princeton YWCA's Tumblebus, clowns, balloons and a Jonathan Sprout concert sponsored by Country Kids in celebration of its 10th anniversary.

Other organizations, such as Arts Council of Princeton, Boy Scouts of America, Creative Theatre, Gymboree, Music Together, Princeton Ballet and American Repertory Ballet, Princeton Soccer Association, Princeton Tennis Program, Princeton YMCA and YWCA, will be on hand with information and demonstrations.

For more information call Chris Hanington at 921-6234.

Information Sessions Offered at TranZitions

TranZitions, Academy Street, Kingston, will hold an information session and open house on Wednesday, September 7, and on Wednesday, October 5, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Entitled "The Ideal Job and How to Find It," the session will introduce career exploration workshops.

On Friday and Saturday, September 16-17 and October 14-15, TranZitions will conduct a one-and-a-half-day workshop combining testing, group exercises, and personal consultants.

This is designed to allow participants to pursue a career direction consistent with their personality, goals, and interests. Cost is $175.

For more information, call 683-8333.

Princeton YWCA to Host N.J. 'Race for the Cure'

More than 1,500 runners and walkers are expected to participate in the First Annual New Jersey Race for the Cure on Sunday, October 2, at Educational Testing Service in Princeton. The event is being sponsored by the Princeton YWCA Breast Cancer Resource Center.

Proceeds will help fund breast cancer education and screening projects for medically underserved women in New Jersey, and help fund the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation's national grant program for breast cancer research.

In order to accommodate men, women and children of all ages and athletic abilities, a series of runs and walks are planned. Registration will begin at 7 a.m. The Women's 5K Run begins at 8:30 a.m. and the Men's 5K, at 9:15 a.m. A one-mile co-ed Health Walk starts at 10 a.m. and a Children's Fun Run (ages 2 to 11) begins at 10:30 a.m.

The entry fee is $17 through September 20 and $20 until the day of the Race. The fee for children 12 and under is $7 with a late fee of $10. Cancer survivors are encouraged to participate in the Race and will receive special pink numbers if requested on the entry form.

New Jersey Governor Christine Todd Whitman is serving as honorary chair of the Race and honorary co-chairs are Mrs. Bill Bradley and New Jersey Senators Bill Bradley and Frank Lautenberg.

For more information and a registration form, contact the Race office at 252-2008 or (908) 429-1245.

Established in 1946 under Congressional legislation introduced by former Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, the program is designed "to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries."

Suburban Transit Co. Well-Run and Reliable

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I am writing in response to your article in the Wednesday, August 24 TOWN TOPICS, regarding Suburban Transit. Much of the following information was provided to me by Mr. Tom Rossiter, General Manager of Suburban Transit, and Mr. Solon Karakoglou, Director of Marketing for Suburban Transit with their permission to use it in this letter.

In response to the article concerning Suburban Transit bus service to Manhattan there are some additional points I would like to make.

I have been commuting every morning and evening with Suburban Transit since 1991 from Princeton to my place of work in Manhattan. I have personally witnessed dramatic improvements in service over the last year. I can't remember the last time I was on a bus that broke down or had faulty air conditioning. During the snowstorms that occurred last winter I was amazed at the service provided, and the conditions the drivers braved to get us to work.

I don't want to see Suburban lose the Park and Ride facility. Suburban has run the whole route from Princeton to Manhattan since 1957 and has leased the Park and Ride for the last 14 years. I feel that Surburban is a well-managed company. It is known that they hold the highest safety rating that is issued by the Federal Highway Administration and their vehicle failure ratio to miles operated is at or above the industry standard.

The fact is, if Suburban Transit loses the Park and Ride, it loses 50% of its business, jeopardizing service utilized by Princeton residents.

Putting the elimination of the Mercer, Somerset and Middlesex county bus service aside for a moment, I really doubt that I.C.Q./Academy, the company that may be awarded the Park and Ride facility, can provide anything resembling the service that Suburban Transit currently offers.

With information Suburban Transit compiled by speaking to I.C.Q. officials and the New Jersey D.O.T. it was revealed that I.C.Q. has only 35 buses. Suburban Transit runs 71 buses and has a fleet of 325 buses.

I.C.Q./Academy plans to run hourly on Saturday and every two hours on Sundays, and the buses will originate from Secaucus. They currently do not have a gate at the Port Authority Bus Terminal, and no gates will be available for the next several years.

If you agree that commuter bus service currently provided by Suburban Transit should be preserved, there are ways you can make your voice heard. One way is to write a letter of protest to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which can be reached at (202) 927-7119.

I feel that competition between bus companies for the Park and Ride is a good thing, but only if the services they provide are comparable.

Our Values Expressed In Official Buildings

To the Editor, Town Topics:

The building of a new facility for police, courts and township administration is prudent. Township employees and elected representatives will have the opportunity to serve the community without concern for their own safety and reasonable comfort.

With proper facilities they will be freer to focus on the job mission. Our disabled citizens will have full access to the building, with the same rights and privileges as everyone else. Community members will enter rooms that are appealing to the senses.

Some monetary restraint is called for. However, our values are expressed through our official buildings. What kind of community do we want to be?

Township Has Neglected Maintenance of Its Assets

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I am disturbed by the Township Committee's decision process in evaluating the options for renovating or rebuilding Township Hall.

It was clear at the August 15th meeting that only the most superficial consideration had been given to the disposition of the Valley Road building in the cost of the various new building options.

It appears that not only have there been no discussions with the School Board who nominally owns the building, but also that the Township is in default on a 25-year lease agreement due to neglected maintenance. Doesn't the Committee feel any custodial responsibility for taxpayer-owned assets?

Evidently, Township Committee has been scrimping on maintenance of existing infrastructure, including roads, to "save taxpayers money" while merrily "investing" in such worthwhile projects as ballfields, an extravagant firehouse, and the Griggs Farm fiasco which has driven municipal taxes up 40% largely to cover the additional debt service.

Now, this past neglect, which Mayor Marchand had the temerity to blame on the Borough's voting down consolidation, is being combined with wishful thinking regarding the Valley Road building to justify construction of a new municipal building which "Princeton can be proud of."

Since the taxpayers of Princeton are the real owners of the Valley Road building, I don't believe that the true costs of the various options to us, the taxpayers, have been fully stated.

Bill Before Congress Aids The Incinerator Industry

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Princeton residents were blessed with good luck born of hard work on July 31, 1994.

On that day, the Ogden-Martin corporation failed to begin scheduled construction on the Mercer County incinerator. This was a major victory for those advocating sound and fiscally responsible waste management in this area. As I have written before on these pages, the incinerator, if built, will pose health problems for Princeton residents and will increase taxes and fees for overburdened taxpayers.

Construction of the incinerator — which the Ogden-Martin corporation and County officials have tried to erect over public opposition for more than a decade — was stopped for two reasons.

First, the hard work of dedicated environmental activists, including Princeton's own Wendy Benchley and Dolores Phillips, have helped to delay the project. Their work, and the work of hundreds of others, has resulted in savings to the taxpayers and has helped to maintain the environment of Princeton.

Second, the Supreme Court recently ruled that the scheme conceived by Mercer County Executive Robert Prunetti and the Ogden-Martin corporation is unconstitutional. Briefly, this scheme sought to coerce municipalities and counties — including Princeton — to send garbage to the planned incinerator. (This government coercion is the only way an incinerator can be built because it costs so much more to incinerate garbage than to dispose of it any other way.)

In striking down these coercive arrangements, the Supreme Court has made it, for now, impossible to build the incinerator that would dramatically affect the quality of life in Princeton.

But Ogden-Martin corporation and the politicians backing the trash burning project will stop at nothing. They have now asked Congress to pass a bill overruling the Supreme Court.

A congressional committee recently voted for the Ogden-Martin sponsored amendment and the full House will vote on it soon after Labor Day. The incineration industry — which spends thousands on national and state lobbyists — is working overtime to slip this amendment in while nobody is looking.

Phone Your Representative

This amendment must be stopped. Defeating it is the best way to defeat the incinerator. If every Princeton resident took only five or ten minutes and phoned their elected representatives, this would send a powerful message.

If we do nothing and simply roll over and allow the special interests to defeat public opinion, the result will be a steady stream of toxins flowing into our backyard. This will also result in higher taxes.

Here is what you can do:

1. Call your elected federal officials. Here are their numbers: Congressman Dick Zimmer, 609-895-1559; Senator Bill Bradley, 609-983-4143; Senator Frank Lautenburg, 609-757-5353.

Tell them that you want a firm commitment from them personally to oppose the incineration amendment and you want a further commitment to work to oppose the Mercer County incinerator.

2. Call me at 921-0253 to get involved in stopping the incinerator.

As I have written before, everywhere these incinerators are built the local newspapers are soon filled with citizen complaints about how incinerator emissions are affecting the quality of life and health of local residents.

If we make preventative calls now, perhaps that will save letters of regret later on.

Elm Trees Lining Washington Road Are Clones of the "Princeton Elm"

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Congratulations on the interesting article on the elms lining Washington Road which appeared in the Wednesday, August 17 issue of TOWN TOPICS. Here are a few notes of amplification.

The trees which my father planted in 1920 were grafted plants of the variety (clone) which our nursery sold for many years as the "Princeton Elm." It was the result of a major selection and propagation project which resulted in 21 superior clones, and was selected as the best of them all after long testing of the 21 finalists.

The "Princeton Elm" was indeed much more resistant to Dutch Elm disease and survived the first round of the epidemic in the 1930s and 1940s which killed almost all the American Elms in our area.

Now a new and more virulent strain of the fungus seems to be killing elms again in this area, greatly aided by the extremes of environmental stress in these past few years which Mr. Consolloy correctly identifies. We certainly hope that the inoculation program will save this unique avenue of trees.

Incidentally, the two outer rows of trees are grafted trees of a variety (clone) of American Elm bred and selected at Cornell University by Dr. Wayne Sinclair for high resistance to the fungus. I donated those trees, but it appears that some of them are diseased too, much to my sorrow.

The European elm bark beetle (Scolytus multistriotus), which transmits the disease, does so by feeding on and boring into small twig crotches high in the crown of the trees and does not infect trees through the leaves. The elm leaf beetle (Pyorholta luteolo) which feeds on the leaves is a different insect which greatly weakens the trees but does not actually transmit the fungus.

Green Recycling Bins A Ridiculous Mistake

To the Editor, Town Topics:

Perhaps the County can't bear to send out its tax bills because it realizes what a mistake its green buckets will prove to be. Can you imagine what the community is going to look like after a blustery day with all those loose papers flying around?

To make it even more ridiculous, instead of putting our recycled paper in the brown paper bags as most of us have been doing, we are to put the bags in the bucket separately!

To sell 110,000 buckets to one entity must have been quite a bonanza for some salesman. I think that the officials in charge of finances in our individual communities should look into the County's action in this matter and find out who may have benefitted from this boondoggle.

Variable Speed Limits Make Routes Hazardous

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Although I am new to Princeton and not totally aware of its past issues, I feel certain that the issue that I am about to address is a much-battered one. However, it is in need of additional battering: Why is there so little rhyme or reason to Princeton's speed limits?

As I read of the on-going controversy over busing and hazardous routes, it seems obvious that some of the factors contributing to the hazardous routes might first be addressed.

Why do speed limits in close proximity to town and more seriously, the public and private schools continue to be "country road" speed limits of 40 or 45 mph? For example: on Rosedale Road at its intersection with Elm Road and alongside the bike path that children use to go to Johnson Park School, the speed limit is 45 mph. On the other side of Elm Road, on Cleveland, the speed limit is 25 mph. What is the difference?

The Rosedale Road population is heavy with new neighborhoods and children cutting through from culs de sac that back up to Route 206. If the busing allowance is altered, one can expect more children to walk and bike this route. As is usually the case, cars tend to go at least five miles above the speed limit. That brings it very close to interstate highway speed.

Another example is The Great Road. The speed limit is 40 mph, but given the open stretch, motorists are ticketed at 55 and 60 mph. There are two private schools at the end of this 40 mph stretch. It appears that their busing privileges may soon be revoked as well.

Even more dangerous is the fact that cars back-end each other as they slow down to turn or to obey the speed limit of 25 mph that begins with little or no warning near Westerly Road.

The safety of the bikepaths is a mirage. The traffic along Rosedale Road and The Great Road goes so fast that it is difficult to judge safe crossing or stopping distances.

I have only described two examples. In my search for information to determine whether I could allow my children to safely walk or bike to school, I have heard dozens of similar concerns voiced by people throughout Princeton. The concerns are comprehensive, pertaining to children of all ages, bikers, joggers, etc.

Princeton's traffic is not going to go away; but certain factors such as speed limits, which directly affect its citizens, should be re-examined and altered to adjust to growth. It seems that it is the motorists, many of whom are non-residents, who dictate these hazardous situations. That is not the way it should be.

Former Princetonian Says Seize the Moment, Give Yourselves a Main and a Branch Library

To the Editor of Town Topics:

As a former Princeton resident, I have for the past eight years read my mail subscription to your paper with awed fascination for the "slow" unfolding of certain issues in town. Particularly the issue of whether or not to build a new Public Library; and if so, where: it is like watching a bear turn helplessly yet pleasurably in a vat of molasses.

I'd like to share some facts about another community's "library expectations." I live in Palo Alto, California (population about 58,000), which though different from Princeton, is also a university town and has a highly educated population. Palo Alto has had five public libraries for 23 years and added a sixth small branch in 1985.

In addition to the large Main Library (which shelves no children's books), and the Children's Library about three blocks away (a beautiful facility built in 1940, adjacent to a park and the Children's Theatre), there are four branches of varying sizes (all shelving both adult and children's books). (The computerized catalog allows patrons to identify books available at another branch and request them sent over.)

Palo Altans value their libraries and protect their financing in the city budget. Palo Altans use their libraries; the Palo Alto City Library has one of the highest per capita uses in the state of California. And, Palo Altans who cannot walk or bike to the library every time, drive right up and park in free public parking lots.

As much as I miss Princeton, as much as I loved the Princeton Public Library itself, and enjoyed walking or biking there (with my small children) when it was clement and convenient enough, what about when it was not? The necessity of plotting a visit to the library when there might be parking available, and hurrying to choose books so as to dash out to catch my half-hour meter, is an extremely unpleasant memory. (Libraries are for browsing, not clock-watching!)

Libraries Need Parking

It is not an exciting concept, does not grasp the imagination, and certainly seems to be an impossible point for Princetonians to rally around. But I believe it should be your starting point. Anything else is discriminatory to those who must drive.

And how about this? Since giving up a library in the downtown area is so difficult for many people to face, why not seize the moment and decide to give Princeton both a main and a branch library?

The main library would be the new library, built where there can be parking — at the Princeton Shopping Center, apparently. The branch library would be downtown: one floor (or less) of the present library, while other public offices used the other space.

Good luck. For a distant reader, the bear's antics in the molasses vat beguile away an hour. I need have no fear of the story ceasing its installments in any foreseeable future.

"Early Bird" Einstein Deserves a Memorial

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Friday afternoon, the phone rang; I picked it up to hear a cheerful female voice announce that the adherents of Lyndon Larouche are seeking funds to "halt the rapidly failing economy." I said I didn't see it that way from reading the NY Times and other recognized sources of information.

The voice informed me, "You can get AIDS from reading that paper!" Of course there are many who don't like the Times, but it has never been established that it has anything to do with the spread of AIDS; if it had, the solution of one of the world's most serious problems would be relatively easy, even for Lyndon Larouche.

What I hoped to say when I sat down to write this note is about the controversial memorial to Albert Einstein. I never met him, but I have always admired and felt almost close to him since 1933-34, my senior year, when I roomed at the top of an entry in Walker Hall.

Day after day as I shaved, Professor Einstein walked under my bathroom window on his way to what was then Fine Hall. He had a rapid, purposeful stride.

For that reason, and a thousand others that mathematicians and the world at large appreciate, I believe he deserves a memorial. Besides, he also arose early, far earlier than I who, by contrast, do not deserve a memorial of any kind.

Non-Drivers in Township Depend on Bus Service

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I read your front-page article about the Princeton-New York City bus service (TOWN TOPICS, August 24) with great concern; as a non-driver from the Township I am totally dependent on this service. (The train is not a real alternative: it requires a bus and a walk to the Princeton station, plus the ride from Princeton Junction.)

The possible total loss of service of which your article speaks would be a disaster to those of us dependent on public transportation, particularly in the Township, and it would have a negative impact on the housing market as well.

You were quite right in stressing that the municipality of East Brunswick should not have this kind of power over Princeton inhabitants. Perhaps it is not too late to prevent this mistake from being made.

Palmer Inn Names Room In Honor of McCarter

McCarter Theatre is the only New Jersey Regional Theater to win a Tony Award, and the Palmer Inn in Princeton, has renamed one of its banquet rooms, the McCarter Room.

At a dinner held at the hotel in honor of the Theatre's achievement, Robert Cronheim, hotel owner, stated, "The American Theatre Wing and The League of American Theatres and Producers has acknowledged what New Jersey residents have known for years: McCarter offers a wide variety of innovative and outstanding theatrical presentations. In renaming our meeting room for the Theatre, we demonstrate our pride in associating ourselves with such a professional and creative group of people. We are pleased to count them as our friends."

In attendance were members of the executive board and staff of the McCarter Theatre including Emily Mann, artistic director; Liz Fillo, board president; Jeff Woodward, managing director; Cheryl A. Mills, chairman of the associate board and recently appointed vice chair for the NJ State Council on the Arts; Virginia E. Hendrickson, board vice president; Pamela J. Dempsey, vice chair of the associate board; Ed Perkins, vice chair of the associate board; Linda Swain, member of the board of trustees; Phyllis Marchand, board of trustees and mayor of Princeton Township; and representatives from the Governor's office.

The Palmer Inn has enjoyed a close working relationship with the theatre for more than two years. As part of a cooperative effort, Jeff Baldasarre, director of sales for the hotel, developed a getaway weekend package for guests, a "Two on the Town" Weekend. The package includes accommodations, two tickets to McCarter Theatre, dinner for two in Charlie Brown's Restaurant and continental breakfast the following morning.

Chamber Music Group In Benefit Performance

The Dryden Ensemble, a new organization created by former members of the Baroque Soloists of New Jersey, will perform in a benefit entitled, "Coffee & Counterpoint: A Celebration of J.S. Bach" Sunday, September 18 at 7 at Stuart Country Day School's Norbert Considine Gallery.

This event will raise funds for this season's Dryden Ensemble events, including a children's program and a series of three concerts at All Saints' Church. For the benefit performance, the Dryden Ensemble will recreate Zimmerman's Coffee-Haus, an 18-century Leipzig coffeehouse, with a program of selected works by J.S. Bach for oboe, strings, harpsichord and voices. In addition to the musical offering, the benefit will include a selection of German treats and a dessert table featuring Turkish Coffee Torte, Leipziger Walnuttorte, a variety of fruit tarts, and other delicacies.

Members of the ensemble include Karen Clark, mezzo-soprano; Kevin Deas, bass-baritone; Jane McKinley, baroque oboe; Mary Hostetler Hoyt and David Myford, baroque violins; David Miller, baroque viola; Lisa Terry, baroque cello; and Webb Wiggins, harpsichord.

The Dryden Ensemble, so named in honor of the English poet whose words were set to music by Purcell, Handel and others, is a professional, nonprofit group dedicated to baroque and early classical music. They perform on period instruments, true to the stylistic conventions of the time.

Tax-deductible benefit tickets for the evening of Coffee & Counterpoint ($45 for sponsors and $75 for patrons) are available by calling 466-8541.

Lawrenceville Orchestra Plans Its Third Season

The Lawrence Community Orchestra will begin its third season Tuesday evening, September 20 at 7:15 at the Lawrence Senior Center, 30 East Darrah Lane, Lawrenceville. It will continue the first and third Tuesday evenings thereafter until December 20.

Beethoven symphonies numbers one through eight will be read during successive meetings of this principally sight-reading orchestra. In addition, Haydn, Mozart, Brahms, Bizet, Schubert and works of many other composers will fill out the evenings (plus new pieces by young composers). This group is designed for musicians who wish to gain experience playing the standard symphony orchestra repertory.

All musicians who play classical orchestral instruments are welcome. If you once played a violin, flute, horn, bassoon, and would like to refresh your talents; or if you are learning the viola, cello, clarinet, oboe or trumpet, you are welcome to join the orchestra. The orchestra holds very informal rehearsals in a relaxed atmosphere, with no concerts planned — avoiding the pressures of performances.

Everyone is welcome to come and listen in the Senior Center — but do not expect perfection or polish. Guest conductors will occasionally take over the baton from the organizer, music director and principal conductor, Robert Mueller. Mr. Mueller conducted the Princeton YWCA orchestra, which he began two years ago. He played flute in (and was assistant conductor of) the Princeton Community Orchestra, which met at Princeton High School for more than 30 years.

The extensive orchestral music library was inherited from Joe Kovacs' now-extinct group

Fnr further information call Mr. Mueller at 448-2605, or Helen Holmes, director of the Senior Center, at 884-7048.

Trenton Jazz Festival At New Waterfront Park

The third annual Trenton Jazz Festival will take place in the area's newest facility: the stadium at Mercer County Waterfront Park. New York Voices will headline the 1994 Festival, set for Saturday, September 17. The Festival, sponsored by the City of Trenton and the Trenton Convention & Visitors Bureau, will go on from 1 to 11 p.m. at the riverfront stadium, in a setting along the Delaware River.

Some of jazz's great bass players, and sax and piano players, along with a host of other jazz instruments and vocalists will be on hand. Among them: the Jed Levy Quartet, Tony Maldonado's Orchestra, The Denis DiBlasio Quartet, Jason "Malletman" Taylor, The Tim Warfield Quintet featuring Terell Stafford, The Philadelphia Legends of Jazz, and New York Voices.

Tickets are $10 and children under 12 are admitted free. Tickets may be purchased the day of the Festival, or in advance by calling the Trenton Convention & Visitors Bureau. Visitors may come and go throughout the day, after they have purchased a ticket. Parking and food and beverages are available. The 1994 Trenton Jazz Festival T-shirt will be on sale at the Festival as well as in advance.

The Mercer County Waterfront Park stadium is located on Route 29 South, at the intersection of Cass Street, just south of the Route 1 bridges. For ticket information, call 777-1771.

ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH with Sam deTuro

CRACKS IN TREES

Major cracks that form in trees are often blamed on one of two causes: the freezing and thawing of the trunk during the winter and the effects of direct sunlight on the trunk during any part of the year.

Cracks were thought to develop on the outside of the trunk and move inward. As we learn more about how trees grow, function and protect themselves, we are realizing that this may not be true. Studies by Dr. Alex Shigo indicate that cracks begin to form inside the tree and move toward the surface.

Cracks can originate from wounds, improper pruning cuts, root injury, branch stubs and weak crotches. The important point to realize is that the crack originates inside the tree. Freeze/thaw cycles, drought, wind and heat can cause swelling and contraction of tree stems. These actions may serve to force the internal cracks toward the surface. The environmental conditions did not create the crack; they simply stimulated an existing crack to the surface.

Proper tree care prevents crack formation. Training young trees to proper form, eliminating weak crotches, proper pruning, cuts and wound prevention are the keys. Tree wraps and pruning paints do little to prevent cracks. Cracks can form beneath tree wrap as if it wasn't there.

The LEWIS SCHOOL of Princeton
Then Away Summer Will Fly
At last school's out
Let's laugh and shout.
Learning's been fun
Now let's play in the sun.
The days will be so long
And end with a happy song.
Then Summer will fly away
Into a crisp Autumn day.
Katie Age 13

Is it your wish that each school year will be a new and better beginning for your child? Do you hope this yer will provide a resolution of learning problems and a turnaround in achievement and confidence?
• The Lewis School was founded in 1974 to educate and support bright, creative students who demonstrated a diversity of unorthodox learning styles.
• It was for these promising students and their compelling need to repair academic weaknesses, explore aptitudes, develop self-esteemand personal reliance, that the school was created. We can help your child. We can make a difference.
• An education that prepares a child for productive learning and living, serves that child for a lifetime. •

Blackwork, a very old form of needlework mentioned in Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, was probably popularized in England by Catherine of Aragon, as it was a fashionable form of embroidery in her native Spain. It is geometric in design and employs few stitches, all easy to master for the beginner or experienced needleworker.

This small project can be completed in the two sessions. Cost to nonmembers is $5, which includes kit materials. For more information on the workshop or activities of the chapter, call 275-4655 or 587-0126.

SPORTS

Princeton High Football Crashes into Pre-season

Last week, the Little Tiger football team pulled on helmets and shoulder pads and began the pre-season with double session workouts on the practice field.

As his team runs through calisthenics, blocking drills, and pass plays, fifth-year coach Keith Wadsworth is watching, gauging the talent and size he has to work with and trying to determine how to spread it around.

After taking the Little Tigers to the first round of the New Jersey Group II finals in each of his first four years, coach Wadsworth knows what it takes to get there, and knows also what holes in the Little Tiger line-up want patching.

Lost to graduation last year was four-year starting quarterback Brendan Branon, as well as the electrifying and athletic tailback Marquis Johnson and the talented fullback Ricky Vernon.

Looking at Quarterbacks

In the search for the team's offensive leader, Wadsworth has a few top prospects. Arthur Gross, a sophomore, got some time taking snaps last year.

"Arthur has a good arm," says Wadsworth. "He's skillful, and he went to some quarterback/receiver camps over the summer."

Other possibilities include Justin Henderson, a senior, who has "good technique, but little experience." Mike Nolan, a senior, and Jason Carter, a junior, might see some time. "It's tough," says Wadsworth "We were spoiled with Brendan Branon, but we've got some confidence in our quarterbacks this year."

Inexperienced Backfield

Princeton's running game, which, Wadsworth estimates, has accounted for 95 percent of the team's offense in years past, will be relying on young players this year.

Two exceptionally large pairs of shoes are sitting in the team's locker room waiting to be filled. The departure of Vernon and Johnson leaves the tailback and fullback slots open.

Wadsworth says that in past years, the team has always had an experienced senior to return as fullback. This year, however, the first man through the hole may well be an underclassman.

One of the prime candidates is junior Ken Graziano, a good blocker, who saw some playing time last year. Other possibilities include Paul Slate and sophomore Nick Miles.

In the tailback slot, where Johnson reigned for the past two years, possible starters are senior Brandon McEwen, and juniors Jason Carter and Kareem Schutz.

Princeton's passing game may rest largely in the hands of senior tight end Kirk Webber. A mainstay of the Little Tiger basketball team, Webber is big and strong, and has sure hands. "Kirk has been running his patterns really well," says Wadsworth.

At split end, PHS fans may see senior Mike Nolan, junior Kevin Kaczmarek, or sophomore Jason Harris.

Kaczmarek, says Wadsworth, is a "tough kid" who may be pulled from the split end position to fill in on the offensive line.

A Solid Defense

Coach Wadsworth is happy with the look of the defense. Its greatest strength, he feels, is its depth. "We can rotate a lot with the players to keep them fresh."

There will be some notable changes to the defensive line this year. Webber will probably be moving from defensive end to tackle, and linebacker Kyle Mapps will step in as an end.

One of the squad's greatest assets, feels Wadsworth, is the enthusiasm that it has brought to pre-season practices. "The junior and senior classes are pretty close," he says. "They have good attitudes. They've been practicing together since August 1."

Wadsworth expects to have the team elect captains at the end of this week. Meanwhile, the Little Tigers are preparing themselves for their first scrimmage, Saturday morning against Trenton High.

Elias and Fiedler Survive Final Cuts; Will Play Aginst Each Other Sunday

Defying the odds, the Ivy League's two brightest stars last season have both survived the final roster cuts and will be playing professional football this fall. And they'll be facing each other this weekend when the National Football League regular season begins.

Princeton's Keith Elias and Dartmouth's Jay Fiedler, who finished their collegiate careers on the same field last November in Hanover, N.H., when the Tigers lost to the Big Green, will begih what both hope will be a long stay in the pros this Sunday in Giants Stadium in the Meadowlands. The New York Giants and the Philadelphia Eagles will square off beginning at 1 p.m.

Elias will definitely see more action with the Giants during the afternoon than Fiedler will with the Eagles. Princeton's all-time running back may possibly see some action in the Giants' backfield, and will definitely be on the field as a member of special teams.

The 5'9, 190-pounder won plenty of praise from head coach Dan Reeves for his play in the pre-season. In five pre-season games, Elias gained 86 yards on 27 carries, and scored two touchdowns (a team high), his second coming on a one-yard run in last Saturday's 27-21 loss to the Chicago Bears. He was credited with four tackles on special teams.

"He showed us a lot on special teams," Reeves said. "He showed a big heart, great vision, tremendous quickness and toughness. All of those qualities are what you look for in a player. "He doesn't make mistakes, which is real important," Reeves added.

Other things working in Elias' favor was an injury to rookie running back Gary Downs that kept him out of a couple of pre-season games, and gave Elias more playing time with the first-team offense. His versatility also helped Elias make the 53-man roster, and, of course, financial considerations as well.

In the days of salary caps, Elias, who got a $5,000 bonus for signing with the Giants as a free agent, will make the minimum NFL salary of $109,000. Elias is the first Princeton player to play for the Giants since Karl Chandler played center and guard for them from 1974 to '77.

Fiedler survived a battle with Georgia's Preston Jones (who was on the team last season) for the third-string quarterback position on the Eagles. The only way he will see any action Sunday is if Randall Cunningham and his back-up, Bubby Brister, are injured. (Cunningham suffered a bruised right elbow in the final pre-season tune-up, but is expected to start.) Third-string quarterbacks don't see a whole lot of action in NFL regular-season games, as Dallas' Jason Garrett will attest. They see most of their action at practices during the week, until they become good enough to become a starter or primary back-up.

In his last outing, a 20-12 loss to the Atlanta Falcons, Fiedler completed seven of 17 passes for 101 yards. He threw one interception. Cunningham and Brister's stats weren't any better.

Jason Garrett apparently has retained his spot as the Cowboy's third-string quarterback for another season. In the two years he has had the job, Garrett hasn't seen a total of one quarter of playing time in the regular season, but he does have two Superbowl rings.

His brother, Judd, the all-time rushing leader at Princeton until Elias came along, has not been as lucky. He has never made it through the pre-season with any NFL team, and didn't survive the first round of cuts this time. He had gotten a tryout with Dallas, one suspects, because his father Jim is a scout for the team.

The only other Ivy graduate currently playing in the NFL is veteran Nick Lowry, who has made quite a career for himself as a placekicker. He is now kicking for the New York Jets.

Princeton Men's Soccer Readies for 1994 Season

Coming off the best season of men's soccer in the history of Princeton University, coach Bob Bradley's 1994 squad is adjusting to the loss of numerous key players and girding itself for another run at the Ivy League title.

The team's 10-4-0 regular season record last year, coupled with its romp through the first three rounds of the NCAA Division I tournament, earned coach Bradley Coach of the Year recognition in the division.

Whether the 1994 squad can take themselves as far as the 1993 team will depend, in part, on the leadership abilities of the returning seniors and a few experienced underclassmen.

Graduation claimed five starting players, including the outstanding midfielder Joe Thieman, a two-time all-American, and Rob Pawloski, the starting goalkeeper.

Thad McBride will be the team's captain and on-field leader. Left-midfielder Mike Busch, also a senior, will assume the same position he filled last year.

In the front line, senior Jesse Marsch is in competition for the one open forward position. After missing last season for academic reasons, Marsch returns to a team for which he has played in the midfield in the past to find a glut of talent in his old position.

On defense, Tyson Hom, who started every match for the Tigers last year, will use his experience and strength to lead the four-man zone.

Excellent Underclassmen

The return of Jacob Dowden and Andre Parris to the Tiger lineup bodes well for Tiger fans. Dowden, a junior from North Granby, Conn., scored 14 goals in 17 matches last year to lead the Princeton offensive effort.

Parris, a sophomore from Laurelton, N.Y., set Princeton's single-season assist record as a freshman. A quick, intelligent player, Parris excited fans last year with six assists in the NCAA Tournament.

In the goal, sophomore Stuart Reynolds, of Hershey, Penn., will get the nod from Bradley. After playing behind two solid senior keepers last year, Reynolds appears ready to make the Princeton goal his own domain for the next three seasons.

A Demanding Schedule

Coach Bradley has assembled a demanding schedule this year. In addition to mandatory Ivy League matches, almost all of which are against dangerous teams, Princeton will be playing eight non-Ivy matches.

TRI—CAPTAINS: From left, Cathy Gilbert, Leigh Coppel, and Suzannah Stout, all seniors and veteran varsity players, will lead the PHS girls' soccer team this year. With a host of returning starters, look for the Little Tigers to come out strong this year.

Included in the eight non-conference opponents are Virginia, last year's NCAA champion, and Rutgers, Hartwick, and North Carolina, all Tournament participants.

In his 11th season at Princeton, coach Bradley will be working toward an improvement of his already respectable 71-69-14 overall record with the Tigers.

The season begins a week from this Saturday with an away match at Fairleigh Dickinson. The team will return to Lourie-Love field for its first home game on Monday, September 13, against Lafayette at 7:30 p.m.

—Rob Garver

PHS Girls' Soccer Team Is Young, But Hungry

Last year, the PHS girls' soccer program fielded a starting team that included only two seniors, and boasted six freshmen. It was a tough year: the team posted a 4-11-1 record.

This year, the 17-member squad has three seniors, seven juniors, and seven sophomores. According to coach Greg Hand, though, the outlook is much brighter.

"Even though they're so young in terms of seniors, all but four of the squad are returnees. A real important factor is that they have all had a chance to face competition in the CVC."

The three returning seniors will all start for the team, and will also serve as tri-captains. Four-year starter Cathy Gilbert and three-year starter Suzannah Stout will anchor the team at center midfield. Three-year starter Leigh Coppel will lead the defense as the stopper back.

One of the benefits of such a young squad, is that Hand has most of his starting line-up returning to positions in which they are comfortable.

In the goal, he expects to start junior Anna Kupin. Rounding out the defense will be junior Liz Gilbert at sweeper, and sophomore Carly Zebhur at outside back. Coach Hand has yet to determine who will fill the other outside back spot.

The two captains in the middle will be supplemented by sophomore Ryanne Shaughnessy in one of the outside positions. Two possibilities for the other outside slot are junior Katherine Wepplo and sophomore Rebecca Parks, although one of the two will probably play in the forward position.

The likely candidate for the remaining forward position is sophomore Stephanie Rigolot.

A Big Year?

The temptation is to look at this year as a building year. In the next two seasons, PHS will be playing with consecutive classes of experienced seniors. However, Hand warns that this year's team should not be counted out.

"The three seniors are very important to the team, and I'm sure that they have the sense that this is 'their year.' They are very excited."

The team will open the season at home against West Windsor-Plainsboro on September 13. In last year's competition, remembers Hand, PHS fell to WW-P 1-0 on a last-minute goal, so the Little Tigers will be ready to turn the tables.

School Board

"There should not be acrimony. We should all get along for the common good."

The School Board then took up the question of who will pay for hazardous route busing. This busing is provided to students who must take routes to school that have been designated hazardous by the municipality, but who live less than two miles (2½ miles for secondary school students) from the school.

The State provides significant reimbursement for the busing of students within these mileage limits to public and private schools.

Borough Council and Township Committee have passed resolutions stating they would pick up two-thirds of the hazardous busing costs. The busing bill is about $93,000 in the Township and $16,000 in the Borough.

The School Board, citing State law, last Tuesday night approved a resolution in which it agreed to pay none of the costs of hazardous route busing.

The resolution was approved 7-1. Michael Littman was the lone dissenter.

"Do the Right Thing"

Mr. Littman said he felt "honor-bound to do the right thing on this issue," and that he valued favorable relations with the municipalities. "I'm very much in opposition to the way the whole issue was brought forth," he said.

Mr. Littman stated it was clear that the municipalities must pay, but that he would like the School Board to make a one-time payment to the Borough and Township to help defray costs in the short term.

He received no encouragement for his idea from his colleagues on the Board. Betsy Wilczek equated any payment to the municipalities to transferring money from educating children to building roads. Lee Silver said he didn't feel comfortable with the Township and the Borough trying to bully the School Board to take action that was not in the law.

A suggestion was made by Chiara Nappi that the Board and the municipalities should sit down and redefine hazardous routes, with the goal of reducing the cost of transportation. She also suggested that the schools teach children how to get to school safely.

Change In State Law

Borough Councilman David Goldfarb, acknowledging that the law was clear about municipalities paying for hazardous route busing, said he saw a way around the problem in the future via a bill being considered by the State Legislature.

This legislation would require that parents pick up the cost of hazardous route busing, but that the cost for a child who qualifies for a reduced-cost or free lunch would be borne by the school district. "The Borough could discuss picking this up with the School Board," he added.

Committewoman Tuck said the Township was ready to sit down with the School Board and try to develop a consistent policy on hazardous route busing to avoid the continual addition of routes.

Several times during the discussion, School Board member John Clearwater stated that the Board does not provide courtesy busing. Courtesy busing has allowed school buses heading toward Stuart or Princeton Day School to pick up children who live less than two miles from the school, assuming there was room in the bus. Some courtesy busing was provided last year.

In a letter attached to the meeting agenda, Lafayette Road resident Carolyn P. Landis said her child had been provided with courtesy busing last year. "The transportation coordinator for Princeton has informed another Stuart parent, whose child rode the same bus, that this policy will be terminated for the coming year," she wrote.

Ms. Landis wrote that she understood that, in the past, students who live less than the State-mandated distance from a private school were, as a courtesy, allowed to board and ride school buses which pass through their neighborhoods.

She asked that she and other parents have an opportunity to be heard on this issue.

Goals for Year Adopted

In other business, the School Board adopted the 1994-95 District goals. These are, develop and implement a planning process to support the core mission through 1999; maximize the potential of all students; program presented by the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League.

Also, develop the use of instructional technology; foster community understanding, support, and partnership; and address personnel practices to maximize professional growth and organizational effectiveness.

A prejudice- and diversity-awareneness program, "A World of Difference" provides a study guide for use by teachers who want to provide ways for their students to investigate and understand cultural diversity.

In her workshop, Ms. Clovis asked participants to describe their feelings from the point of view of different ethnic groups and genders. "They wrote how they thought they would feel, and this helped stereotypes come out," said Ms. Patten.

There were three categories to choose from: gender, ethnicity, and miscellaneous characteristics, such as wealthy, gay, or wheelchair-bound. Participants were asked to choose one item from each category which did not represent them. They were then asked to discuss, in their new identity, how people's prejudgments or stereotypes affected their lives.

Workshop Readings included "Graduation," by Maya Angelou, and "Are Movies Ready for Real Asians?" by David Hwang.

Importance of Gestures

Ms. Clovis also explained to her Princeton colleagues the importance of gestures. She said that patting an Asian child on the head, for example, would distress the child.

For Guatemalan children, eye contact is important when speaking. Common American finger gestures, such as pointing, should be avoided.

"The entire week was an effort to make people aware of and accepting and appreciative of all the differences that exist within our society," said Ms. Patten. "If our society is to succeed, that has to happen."

Culturgrams were made available to all the participants. Available for 110 areas of the world, and prepared by the David M. Kennedy Center for International Studies at Brigham Young University, these discuss such items as customs, courtesies, eating, gestures, population, language, religion, the family, diet, recreation, history, and holidays.

The workshop also provided an opportunity to look at the gender issue in relation to a revised mathematics curriculum, which, said Ms. Patten, is also designed to make girls realize they can succeed in math as well as boys can.

The curriculum provides information at every level on the contribution of different cultures to mathematics.

Intervention techniques to use when there is ethnic friction among children were also discussed. Similar intervention techiques had also been a topic at an earlier three-day sexual harassment workshp.

"The multicultural workshop was one of the best things we did," said Ms. Patten. "The teachers who worked together were enthusiastic, and said they couldn't wait to get back and share with their colleagues."

"I like the model," she added. "Training the trainer empowers so many people."

RELIGION

Schedule of Services For High Holidays Told

Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur will be observed by the members of The Jewish Center of Princeton at religious services conducted by Rabbi Dov Peretz Elkins and Cantor Robert Freedman. Rosh Hashana begins on Monday with the evening service starting at 6:30. Morning services for the New Year 5755 will be on Tuesday and Wednesday, Septemer 6 and 7, at 8:15 a.m.

Kol Nidre will begin on Wednesday, September 14, at 6:30 p.m. Yom Kippur services will be held starting the morning of Thursday, September 15, at 8:30 a.m.

High Holiday children's services will be held on both days of Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur. Services for children ages 5 and 6 will be held from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m.; services for children ages 7 to 9 will be held from noon to 1; and services for children ages 10 to 12 will be held from 10 to 11:30 a.m. There will also be a service for nursery-age children from noon to 1.

Members of The Jewish Center will bring non-perishable food on Yom Kippur to distribute to the hungry in observance of the Fast Day of Atonement. In keeping with the prophetic reading of Yom Kippur, "To share your bread with the hungry," (Isaiah 58:7), Rabbi Elkins will urge his congregation to participate in the October 16 "Crop Walk," leaving from the Princeton Shopping Center at 1:30, sponsored by World Church Service; and to contribute to "Mazon: the Jewish Response to World Hunger," an amount equal to the food they would have eaten this Fast Day.

Further information about tickets for nonmembers, membership, congregational activities and Religious School programs may be obtained by calling the office of The Jewish Center at 921-0100.

Bulletin Notes

String of Pearls, a two-year-old Princeton area Jewish congregation, announces openings in its Hebrew School for children ages 6 to 13. Classes will be on Mondays beginning September 12.

String of Pearls is a diverse reconstructionist-oriented congregation. Classes will emphasize Jewish ethics, history, Hebrew language as well as Bar and Bat Mitzvah preparation. The teacher of the younger class is Allisyn Scarola, who taught public school in Brooklyn, N.Y. for five years and recently relocated to Hamilton.

The older class will be led by Ronit Rackowski, an Israeli currently living in Robbinsville. She is a freelance graphic artist who has been teaching Hebrew for two years at the Perrineville Jewish Center.

For further information, call Hannah Fink at 252-0157.

The Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in Princeton Junction will have a booth at the West Windsor-Plainsboro high school flea market on Saturday, September 10, with all the profits going to the Trenton Area Soup Kitchen. This marks the fifth year that the church has raised funds for the soup kitchen. More than $250 was donated last year.

Anyone who would like to donate items may leave them at the church office on Hightstown Road or call 799-1642 for further details.

First Presbyterian Church of Plainsboro will resume its fall schedule effective Sunday, September 11. The Sunday worship service will be at 11, with Sunday School at 9:30. ———

A new curriculum for Bible study will be introduced at Christ Congregation, Walnut Lane, in September. Word Among Us, a worship-centered, lectionary-based curriculum published by the United Church Press, will be used in both adult and children's classes.

The Bible stories and readings explored each week are taken from the lectionary and thus are often those used in worship. Through a variety of arts and other experiences, groups will consider why these passages are important today. The curriculum is intended both to enhance worship with the congregation and increase understanding of what it means to be the church.

Worship at Christ Congregation begins at 10 a.m. The Rev. Paul Lauby will lead worship this Sunday; the Rev. Ted Hardgrove on September 11; and the Rev. Alan Neely on September 18. Pastor Jeffrey Mays is on sabbatical until late September.

Temple Micah, liberal reform congregation that meets at the Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church, has also announced its 1994 High Holy Day services. Rabbi Ellen Greenspan will lead the services, assisted by Cantor Nathaniel Entin and Organist Patricia Wight.
